Elmos places great emphasis on promoting and supporting young people and is highly committed to apprenticeship, which it sees as an important investment in the future.

Elmos offers a total of eleven different training professions and integrated degree programs at its German locations, primarily at the main location in Dortmund. High-quality training at Elmos is tailored to our needs as an innovative, high-tech company and offers young people an excellent starting point for their professional careers. A youth and trainee representation represents the trainees' interests vis-à-vis the management.

Elmos regularly presents itself at career fairs for the purpose of recruiting new trainees. In addition to that, Elmos uses various social media channels such as LinkedIn and Instagram.

Elmos also works extremely successfully with renowned universities and colleges, with the Elmos Foundation awarding a variety of scholarships and giving students the opportunity to combine their studies with practical experience at the company. Through this strategy, Elmos is successful at attracting talented young people at an early stage and broadening their career prospects.
